BIG BOMBERS RAKE ROME

LONDON, March 7 (AP)—Rome radio said waves of four-engine bombers attacked Rome today.

"Formations of four-engined aircraft in successive waves dropped bombs on inhabited districts of the city of Rome," the broadcast said.

"The enemy aircraft flew over targets at a comparatively low level and dropped loads of explosives on the Ostiense and Trastevere districts. The total number of casualties has not yet been ascertained but appears to be very high."

Yank Raiders K.O. 176 Nazis

By RICHARD R. KASISCHKE

LONDON, March 7 (AP) — The great American air fleets smashing Berlin Monday knocked 176 Nazi planes from the sky, but lost 68 four-engined bombers in one of the greatest plane battles of the war, U. S. Army headquarters disclosed today.

RAF night bombers kept the attack rolling with a heavy blow last night on railway targets at Trappes, France, 15 miles southwest of Paris, and Mosquito bombers darted against targets in northwest Germany, all without loss.

More than 850 American bombers hurled over 2000 tons of bombs upon burning Berlin, and in the swirling aerial battles all the way from the Dutch coast to the capital, gunners of Fortresses and Liberators bagged 93 enemy planes, while Fighter escorts shot down 33.

It was the second highest single day's score in victories for the U. S. Air Forces. The record still is the 307 German planes downed during the Schweinfurt and Regensburg raids last Aug. 18.

But the bombers suffered a record loss. Sixty-eight of the big craft and 11 Fighter planes plunged down. About 700 highly trained airmen were lost.

The great daylight attack on the heart of Germany was flaming warning that virtually no section of the Reich is safe from round-the-clock bombing, and it caught the imagination of Britons. British newspapers cheered it as a major victory, marking a tremendous new phase i nthe air war.

The air ministry said first reports on last night's raid at Trappes indicate the bombing was "accurate and well concentrated." The planes may have carried the six new six-ton block-busters.

The blow on Berlin was delivered with the full weight of the U. S. Eighth Air Force.

Photographs brought back by Maj. Walton L. Weitner of Yonkers, N. Y., a reconnaissance pilot who flew alone in an unarmed plane over Berlin, showed numerous fires and great devastation were left among high priority war plants and other targets.

DAY OF HELL IN THE SKY

"It Was Frightful," Pilot Writes; Tells of Truck-Sized Air Mines Over Reich

An American Fortress pilot from Liberty, Tex., describes in graphic detail the "hell in the sky" Monday when U. S. bombers carried out their daring raid on Berlin.

By FIRST LIEUT. JAMES A. HARRISON
Pilot of the Fortress Call Her Savage

Written Expressly for International News Service

A FORTRESS BASE IN ENGLAND, March 7 (INS) —A visiting fireman flew with us yesterday. He is Col. Al Harvey, who came along as command pilot for a look at Berlin. He got it. So did we all.

When he climbed aboard the Savage this morning, I told the colonel I thought we'd know each other pretty well before the end of the day.

As it turned out, we both lost many good friends during this day of hell in the sky.

We were leading the high squadron in our group. The trip en route to Berlin was fairly uneventful. We saw a flak burst here and there, and a few German fighters. There was little to worry about until we were within a half-hour of the capital; then hell broke loose.

German fighters came up in rows. From here it was frightful. Fortresses and German fighters were going down all around us. We had our first fighter attack in the nose. It came in two waves, 12 in each. In the first pass they got both my wing ships.

We were flying high and could see the Jerries going after the low group. The engine of one Fort burst into flames, and soon the entire ship was afire. Another was burning from the waist to the tail.

It seemed both the pilot and co-pilot of another ship had been killed. As the ship was hit, it started toward us out of control. I moved the squadron over. Still it came. Again we moved. This time the stricken Fortress stalled, went up on its tail, and then slid down.

Meanwhile, my ball turret gunner reported that the ship behind us had blown up. Other gunners reported desperate battles between Fort gunners and German fighters.

One fighter came in from above. Our top turret gunner, A. E. Beecher of Spokane, Wash., got him at 600 yards.

Our squadron was badly depleted, and I asked the other ships behind to move forward and join us.

Regensburg had been my worst raid up to this date. There really is no comparison. This was worse than any I could imagine.

We had been calling our escort. Apparently it had been battling the Germans elsewhere. Finally, it arrived, and we had a ringside seat to one of the fiercest dogfights of the war.

We ran into six air mines, one after another. They are some thing new. Each seemed about the size of a truck. When it burst, you'd shudder all over. They throw out some of that new tree stuff—multicolored flak. I saw one blow the whole tail off one ship.

We finally got to the target and let our bombs go. Coming out was no picnic. One gang of Jerries would force our B-17 out of formation and others would pounce upon it.

It was virtually that way all the way back as far as the French coast.

The colonel and we are close friends now. We agree the air war in the European theater is pretty rough.

RUSSIA—Red army drive rolls through Volochisk to Lozova, cutting the Odessa-Lwow railway, the Nazis' last important rail outlet in southern Russia.

RED ARMY RACING FOR RUMANIA

By EDDY GILMORE

MOSCOW, March 7 (AP) — The Red army brought the war close to Rumania today, all but isolating Gen. von Mannstein's southern Ukraine army from Germany and Poland, surging on despite weather so bad Soviet dispatches described it as "almost impossible."

At some places where the Russians have taken strongholds on the Odessa-Warsaw railway, Soviet units are 87 miles from the Rumanian border beyond the Moldavian republic. (This refers to the border established in 1940 when Rumania ceded Bessarabia and northern Bucovina to Russia.)

Front dispatches said the snow had been washed away by heavy rains and wide fields of the Ukraine are ponds and areas of mud.

These dispatches pointed out how the lack of roads and the mud have brought about "parallel chasings" of the German army, and indicated the Germans have been separated from one another where only a few miles lay between various units.

Six railways connect the Odessa-Warsaw and the Lwow-Bucharest trunk lines, joining two junctions of Tarnopol, Proskurov, Zhmer-

Nimitz Tells of Pacific Gains

WASHINGTON, March 7 (AP)—Adm. Chester W. Nimitz, commander-in-chief of the Pacific fleet, reported today on his return to Washington for a series of conferences that (1) American forces have occupied the Majuro atoll in the Marshall Islands and (2) our submarines may deliver the killing blow in the Pacific.

U. S. troops encountered no opposition when they invaded Majuro, once a German supply base, the admiral told a news conference. They found no Japanese on the atoll, he said, adding that the little island will provide American forces with a good anchorage and advance position in the mid-Pacific Marshalls.

Adm. Nimitz

As for the work of our submarines, Adm. Nimitz said they "are taking such a heavy toll of Japanese shipping that lack of shipping may soon be the controlling factor in what Japan is able to do."

The admiral declares our position in the Pacific is very favorable" and improving.

"Our submarines are increasing in number and not decreasing in efficiency, even though the number of targets is slowly decreasing," he added.

The admiral warned at the same time against discontinuing the importance of Japanese submarines, saying they "will become more of a menace as our lines shorten. We are not finished with the Japanese subs by any means."

"It would be to our advantage to have an early encounter with the Japanese fleet, because we are prepared to meet them. It would be disastrous for their overseas communications if we could fight an early engagement and they lost a good part of their fleet. My idea is that they are preserving their fleet as long as possible."

Asked about the failure of the enemy fleet to appear in any force, Nimitz replied that "they've got a pretty big area to take care of. I can't answer, however, why they haven't been around our way. If they have any information at all, they must know that we have a very powerful fleet in the Pacific."

He described Japanese naval officers and men as "highly efficient and well trained," adding that "not in any sense have they lost their will to fight."

"They're pretty good," he said, "but our people are better than they are and equally willing to fight."

New Patrol Clashes On Cassino Front

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, Naples, March 7 (AP)—Sharp clashes have flared between Allied patrols and the Germans inside battered Cassino, and American troops have thrown back two small Nazi attacks near Cisterna on the Rome beachhead.

The Germans opened up with heavy mortar and machine-gun fire at Cassino, then sent patrols out, but no gains were made. Rain and mud bogged down both armies. The Rapido river rose three feet.

Allied artillery again took a heavy toll of the Nazis attacking the beachhead. Another minor Nazi thrust southwest of Carroceto on the other side of the beachhead also failed.

The Germans also launched two small attacks against Indian troops of the Eighth Army near Orsogna, but they were beaten back.

Spitfires fired a schooner in Kotor Bay on the Yugoslav coast and strafed a freight train and a troop carrying truck convoy near Dubroynik.

The Germans have increased the number of snipers along the beachhead perimeter. They lie ready to pick off Allied soldiers the second they expose themselves.

(Swede) Carlson, who led a formation of bombers in the assault on the Nazi capital. He has yet to meet Paula.

Ely Demands Legal Proof in Noxon Death

By PAULINE WARREN
Boston American Staff Writer

PITTSFIELD, March 7—With the sudden declaration that the defense objected to any further hearing of testimony in the Noxon murder trial, former Gov. Ely pointed out today the state has failed to produce the required corpus delicti.

Ely, chief counsel for John F. Noxon, Jr., who is accused of murdering his 6-months-old son, Lawrence, by electrocution, said he would oppose further testimony until the State established the legal fact of death.

AIMS TO FORCE HAND

It was a legal technicality but aimed at bringing to the stand Medical Examiner Albert C. England. The State has not called England, although his is to be the statement of the official cause of death.

The trial has been proceeding since Feb. 23, except for a two-days' interruption last week due to the illness of a juror.

Judge Pinanswi ruled that Dr. Alan R. Moritz, state pathologist and head of the department of legal medicine at Harvard Medical School, might take the stand.

Dr. Moritz performed the autopsy on the Noxon child. As he walked to the stand, obviously destined to tell what he found in the post-mortem, Mrs. Noxon strode quietly but quickly from the courtroom.

The Harvard medical expert was put through a long and penetrating series of questions as to his qualifications to testify in the matter of death by electrocution.

He disclosed there was one question he would have to refuse to answer. He had said he was studying medical problems in defense plants. The details were secret and could not be made public from a witness stand, he said. This was accepted without challenge.

Spank Age?

BUFFALO, N. Y., March 7 (AP)—Spanking is prescribed as a cure for juvenile delinquency, vice and crime.

The Rev. George Bates of Cleveland, speaking last night at a youth rally, called this a "spankless age," and declared:

"Most of the faults of this hour can be laid to men and women in their forties and fifties" who brought 'up children according to Freudian philosophies which, he said, advocate "self-expression and no inhibitions.

Finns Await Reds' Reply

By ROBERT STURDEVANT

STOCKHOLM, March (AP)—The Finnish government is momentarily awaiting word from the Russian government on Finland's "reply to Moscow" on proposed armistice terms, the Aftonbladet's Helsinki correspondent reported today.

This report, which was cleared by Finnish censorship, was the first word direct from Finland tending to lend credence to reports Finland had made some sort of acknowledgment of the Russian terms.

The Finnish Parliament is scheduled to meet today.

Berlin-Bound With New England's Own

Lake Salutes Foot Soldiers

By AUSTEN LAKE

SOMEWHERE IN ENGLAND (By Air Transport)—So here we are again, in the gray hollows of the down-country, where England's liquid winter is at its peak, and the American foot-soldiery are still steadily on the march.

And now that I have been with the airforce, I am even better able to appreciate the ordeals of the ground troops.

For in the insect world of war these are the ants of the Army, as the fighter pilots are its wasps—men who have little emotional release from the drudgery, none of the special perquisites of diet, or the "clublife," which the knight errantry of the air enjoy between missions.

Not that I belittle the important role being played by the fighter pilots, for these are intrepid youngsters who take their risks with high heart.

But theirs is a "clean" war, in the full spotlight of public recognition, with intervals of ease, and no cost to their individualism.

I purposely except the bomber crews from this category, for they take a vicious brutalizing. By any standard of combat the bomber's job is no bargain.

Yet even they have the solace of knowing that there is an end to their ordeal—the 25th mission which sends them home for three months and perhaps for good.

A man can take almost anything if he knows there is a terminal point to his discomfort.

One Dreary Grind

But the ground trooper has no such consolation—just the war-long prospect of slogging along by pure muscular power and moral determination, through mud, wind and rain.

There is no surcease, no hope of respite until war ends. Of all branches of service, my salute goes to the foot soldiery—the underdogs of war.

So here I am again in a gray world from which nature's colors have been neutralized, leaving a drab limbo in which the men, clad in fatigue grays to fit the background, plod along or stand in an attitude of eternal waiting, substituting a sense of humor for the things they lack and long for.

Wild-Spending Yank Soldiers Astonish Britons

Austen Lake, Boston American war correspondent in Britain with New England's Berlin-bound fighting sons, writes tomorrow of the British astonishment at the way Yankees spend money as they await orders to invade Nazi-occupied Europe.

"Why, they throw money around like confetti," the British shopkeepers exclaim. Lake points out that most soldiers are making allotments but save up some money for furloughs and then have a "splurge."

Read Wednesday's article in the Boston American for this interesting sidelight on life in Britain along with messages by boys from Boston, Hingham, Dorchester, Roxbury, Danvers, Quincy, North Attleboro, Worcester, Malden, Taunton, Attleboro, Spencer, Wilmington and many other New England cities and towns.

MAINE MOTHER UNAWARE 7 DIED IN FIRE

YORK BEACH, Me., March 7—Five days ago Mrs. Raymond Rokey, 32-year-old wife of a Portsmouth Navy Yard worker, told her seven children, ranging in age from 10 months to 13 years, to "be brave little boys and girls until mother comes back from the hospital."

Today, doctors held a conference at York Village Hospital trying desperately to decide if the mother herself was brave enough to be told that all her children are dead, victims of a tragic fire which razed their seafront cottage on Long Beach blvd.

Doctors and hospital officials wondered, too, who among them was brave enough to tell the bed-ridden mother that her loved ones had burned to death and that her home and all her worldly possessions were gone.

The children's father collapsed when Coast Guardsmen broke the news to him at his work on the night shift at the Navy Yard. The short, stocky, hard-working man, was hardly in condition to comfort his wife, doctors said.

Since she entered the hospital, suffering from a hemorrhage, Mrs. Rokey has asked daily for her children.

In a room in the same hospital with her is Thomas Andrews, 83, owner of the summer cottage which the Rokeys had converted into a year-round home. Andrews, who had been left in charge of the children, was badly burned in a futile attempt to rescue them.

Cause of the blaze, which burned with rapid fury and destroyed a nearby untenanted cottage, was not determined.

The victims were Evelyn, 13, Alice, 11, John, 9, Beatrice, 7, Franklin, 5, Mary, 3, and Dorothy, 10 months. All seven bodies were recovered from the ruins and removed to a local funeral home.

New Protein to 'Build You Up'---Actually!

BERKELEY, Cal., March 7 (AP)—A substance theoretically capable of developing undersized people into individuals of normal stature has been obtained in pure form by two University of California biological scientists.

Although not enough of the stuff has been collected as yet to influence the growth of a single human being, there is a possibility, these scientists say, that it can be put to practical use in time to be of help in the war.

This would mean the treatment of undersized youths of pre-draft age so that by the time of their call to service there would be less difficulty with weight and height requirements. At present the minimums for military service are five feet in height and 105

The substance, a protein, was isolated by Dr. Chaoh Hao-Li and Dr. Herbert M. Evans, the discoverer of vitamin E. It comes from the pituitary gland of animals and is called the growth hormone.

So far the substance has been used only on laboratory rats. Dr. Li reports the chemical will cause further growth in rats that have stopped growing naturally.

Triple Slaying Motive in Army Camp Is Mystery

RIVERSIDE, Cal., March 7 (AP)—Two girls and a policeman were slain and five other persons were wounded yesterday at nearby Camp Anza by a 31-year-old Army officer before police bullets injured the assailant, the camp commander reported.

A military board of inquiry is seeking to establish the motive for the shootings.

Killed when Second Lieut. Beaufort G. Swancutt of La Crosse, Wis., suddenly cut loose with a .45-caliber Army automatic Sunday night, said Col. Earle R. Sarles, camp commander, were:

MISS DOROTHY DOUGLAS, 18, of Long Beach, Cal.

MISS LOURDINE LIVERMORE, 18, of Long Beach, Cal.

ARTHUR B. SIMPSON, 34, a Riverside police radio patrolman.

The camp commander and witnesses thus described the affray:

Swancutt, his close friend, Second Lieut. Harry J. Light, and the two girls were sitting in the Camp Anza Officers' Club about 10:30 p. m. playing cards after dining in Riverside.

Suddenly Swancutt rose from his chair, drew his side arm and quickly shot Miss Douglas and Miss Livermore in the chest and Lieut. Light in the hand and leg. The girls died shortly in the post hospital.

Another bullet struck the leg of Lieut. Aldace Minard, 38, of Pomona, Cal., who was passing by.

Rushing to the officers' quarters, Swancutt awakened his superior officer, Capt. Aubrey G. Serfling, 27, of Preston, Minn., and demanded another gun clip, explaining he was on guard duty and had lost the clip he had. When Serfling refused, Swancutt shot him twice in the abdomen.

Running outside, he wounded Corp. Robert Sampson.

He then forced Sergt. John E. Roberts to drive him in a staff car from the camp into the suburban town of Arlington, where the camp is situated.

There he stopped a car driven by Ray Schlegel, Los Angeles, and ordered Schlegel, his wife, Terry, and Schlegel's cousin, Euel Atchley, apprentice seaman, to get out of the car with the Schlegels' 8-months-old baby.

At this point, said Police Chief Nestor Brule, Officers Simpson and E. F. Cole appeared. Bullets from Swancutt's gun killed Simpson and wounded Schlegel in the side. Cole fired back, hitting Swancutt in the stomach, chest and side.

A military court will try Swancutt on a murder charge, Col. Sarles added.

Swancutt attended officers' training school at Fort Benning, Ga., after enlisting in the Army in August, 1942. His brother, Maj. Woodrow Swancutt of the Army Air Forces, former intercollegiate boxing champion at the University of Wisconsin, was pilot for Lord Louis Mountbatten when the latter visited this country.

Held as Passer Of Bogus Checks

Charged with larceny by passing forged checks at Greater Boston stores, Peter DiNapoli, 31, of Thomas pk., South End, today was identified by several clerks as the man who showed them bank books to support his claims for the checks' validity.

He was arrested after Salvatore T. Sapienza, 25, of Dorchester ave., Dorchester, was seized on a charge of forging a U. S. Treasury check. Police said Sapienza told them he got the check from DiNapoli.

According to police, DiNapoli passed, or attempted to pass, allegedly worthless checks in stores at Lynn, Wellesley, Brookline, Winchester, Brockton and Boston.

Two clerks, Joseph Ganley of Brockton and Jeannette Dale of Wellesley, said they refused to accept DiNapoli's checks even after he exhibited the bank books and auto registration papers.

Sapienza, in East Cambridge jail in lieu of $5000 bail, was arrested when he forged a check for $18.75 issued as a refund for a war bond, police said.

Army Officer Often In Trouble With Law

LA CROSSE, Wis., March 7 (INS)—Trouble with the law is nothing new for 2nd Lieut. Beaufort G. Swancutt, it was revealed today.

Swancutt killed three persons and wounded five others before he was shot himself Sunday night.

Asstant Police Chief Aaron Sanford of La Crosse, Wis., said Swancutt had been paroled to him at least two times for offenses committed in civilian life—one of them drunkenness.

Authorities said he twice had attempted to commit suicide and had been arrested on a larceny charge, receiving a suspended sentence.

The officer's wife, who lives in La Crosse with their two young children, said she knew nothing of the shooting orgy except what she had been told by local newspapermen.

Coast Guard Heroes Back With 'Old Joe'

Two Greater Boston shipmates of "Old Joe," as they call their Coast Guard attack transport, returned to Boston today without a scratch following two years of action in far-flung theaters of war.

"We almost got it plenty of times," said First Class Boatswain's Mate Fred J. Warren, 22, of 245 Tremont st., Newton, "but I guess we were just lucky—especially the night at Salerno when a Stuka dove between our ship and another Coast Guard vessel.

"Both ships opened up with everything," he said. "Our tracers were spraying the other's decks and his were spraying ours, but we got the Stuka."

The "we" in this case was Warren's buddy, First Class Gunner's Mate Leon Cobb, Jr., of 203 Lowell st., West End, who spent 32 minutes firing his blistering hot 40-mm. cannon and got credit for downing three Nazi air raiders.

Coast Guard authorities said he got one of the Nazi planes as it crossed the moon's path—for the entire action took place around midnight.

Both Warren and Cobb took part in the invasion of North Africa, Sicily and Salerno and have seen action in New Caledonia and Australia. At present they are stationed at the Coast Guard air base in Salem.

LEGION VET BILL SIGN-UP DAY MARCH 15

By FRANK REILLY
Boston American Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, March 7—In a call to arms to 1,300,000 members of the American Legion to join in the nation-wide demand for enactment of the veterans' omnibus bill, National Comdr. Warren H. Atherton today designated the Legion's 25th birthday, March 15, as "National Sign-Up Day."

On that day, tens of thousands of Legion members and the women of their Auxiliary will conduct house-to-house, office-to-office, store-to-store and factory-to-factory canvasses for millions of signatures asking that Congress pass the "G-I bill of rights."

The campaign, one of the most effective ever conducted in support of legislation pending before Congress, is being timed so that petitions will flood Washington on the eve of final action by the House and Senate on the legislative program for rehabilitation of discharged service men.

FINAL VOTE LOOMS

Comdr. Atherton, in outlining plans for "National Sign-up Day," declared that the critical time for passage of the bill is at hand and that final vote on the measure may be expected within the next fortnight.

"Reports from overseas prove that our fighting men and women are concerned for their future," the Legion chief said. "They are wondering if the people on the home front are mindful of the sacrifices they are making on the battlefields.

"We must send them an American Legion birthday message — we must show them that the people of America are squarely behind them and will ever be on the alert to protect their future."

RUSH SIGNATURES

In his appeal to the 12,000 American Legion posts of the United States, Atherton asked further that upon completion of the canvass on March 15, each post wire the Legion national headquarters in Washington, the two senators from their respective states and their local congressmen, advising how many signatures were obtained.

The signatures are then to be placed in the mail and rushed to Washington for presentation to members of the House and Senate, he instructed.

Clerks Run Weymouth OPA as Board Quits

Ten paid clerks were running the Weymouth ration board today, following the resignation of board members who resented the OPA ousting of Chairman George E. Lane for political activities.

Lane was outsted from his unsalaried post by Eldon C. Shoup, New England OPA administrator, after Lane had announced he would run for town meeting membership. The Hatch Act bars appointees to federal posts, paid or unpaid, from seeking public office or engaging in other political activity.

Lane's seven colleagues on the Weymouth board then resigned to the selectmen. The State OPA office had received no formal notice of the fact today, either from selectmen or the board members, it was said by William E. Hale, board operations executive.

Hale said OPA would take no action to fill the posts, pending developments. The 10 paid clerks are empowered to make decisions on routine matters, he added.

Hale denied reports that Everett Gardner, board member, had been ousted for political activity along with Lane.

Formation of a new board, the chairman to be approved by Administrator Shoup, would be carried out by OPA upon submission of names by the selectmen and the Office of Civilian Defense, Hale stated.

'Reefers' Sold Hub Pupils by N.Y. Ring

Disclosure that a New York dope ring has been promoting sales of marihuana to boys and girls in English High School and other South End schools, as well as to servicemen and their girl companions, was made by Boston police today as they staged a roundup of narcotic pedlars.

Deputy Police Supt. James F. Daley revealed that the present drive was launched three weeks ago after mothers of two English High students informed him they had found marihuana cigarettes in their sons' pockets.

From the boys police learned of the existence of a wide open trade in narcotic cigarettes among other school children, with the "reefers" easily obtainable at 50 cents each. Detectives said pedlars from New York were supplying the youngsters.

The first arrest was staged Friday by Detectives Michael O'Brien and William J. Parlon of the police narcotics squad and Edward Murphy, federal agent, when Mrs. Norma Ferguson, 20, of Walnut ave., Roxbury, was taken into custody.

A few hours after she was arraigned Saturday in U. S. district court and ordered held in $2500 on a dope charge, the same officers raided a house in Marble st., Roxbury, to seize 500 grains of marihuana and a colored couple, William D. Drake, 32, of Roxbury, and Miss Thelma E. Jones, 20, of New York City.

Drake and Miss Jones were arraigned yesterday before U. S. Commr. William C. Rogers and held in $1500 each for a hearing March 13.

A white man, a Negro and a young woman identified by police as Drake's wife, were arrested on Columbus ave., South End, last night. In the glove compartment of their car, which bore New York plates, detectives said 800 grains of marihuana and cigarette paper, worth a total of $1500, were found.

Their bodies were found outside the Altringham Hotel on Feb. 16, officers sitting in the court martial disclosed as they opened an inquiry into the deaths.

Cygman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Cyganiewicz of Ford st., Gardner, went overseas two months ago, having served in the Army for 16 years.

GALIANO, PALS ARE HELD IN $120,000 BAIL

A Cambridge jewelry salesman, a South End night club manager and two teen-aged youths were arraigned in Brookline and Newton courts today on charges in connection with a series of burglaries and were held for the grand jury in bonds totaling $120,000.

William Penfilio of Newport rd., Cambridge, and Daniel Galiano, 50, of Parsons st., Brighton, the club manager, were arraigned before Judge Daniel A. Rollins in Brookline court, charged with receiving and aiding in concealment of articles stolen from the home of Louis Silin, Willard rd., Brookline.

Both pleaded not guilty and were held in double sureties of $25,000 each for the grand jury.

James F. Whigman, 19, of Crafts rd., Brookline, Concord parolee, pleaded guilty to being an accessory to the Silin burglary and was held in $10,000.

Police Capt. Joseph T. Mahoney of Brookline opposed a defense request for lower bail for Penfilio. He said Penfilio's business took him out of the State frequently and police wanted to check New York authorities to learn if Penfilio has any record there.

In Newton court, John Gochakowski, 17, of Leverett st., West End, former Lyman School inmate, pleaded guilty to five counts of breaking and entering in the nighttime. Judge Donald E. Mayberry ordered him held in $10,000.

Capt. Mahoney said Gochakowski will be brought into Brookline court later this week to face a charge of breaking into the Silin home and taking $22,000 worth of furs and jewelry. An additional charge will be lodged for burglary of the home of Samuel Baylin in Windsor st., Brookline.

Mahoney told Judge Rollins he had "definite" information that Penfilio and Galiano were the "fences" through which the youths disposed of their loot.

ACTOR TERMS SEDUCTION CHARGE 'SILLY'

WASHINGTON, March 7—The nine-year, cross-country legal battle for custody of 10-year-old Joan Langan today drew a statement from Hollywood in which Neil Hamilton, former movie hero, termed as "silly," testimony given in court here that he had seduced Joan Manners, the child's British-born actress mother.

Hamilton said he did not recall ever having known Miss Manners, whose former husband, John Langan, ex-Hollywood dialogue director, made the charge of the actor's alleged indiscretion and added the actor paid $1500 "to keep it quiet."

"MAY HAVE MET HER"

"If she was an actress and was in Hollywood during the 1930's, I may have met her, however," the veteran film player said.

Langan said Miss Manners told him she had intimate relations with Hamilton in a Hollywood studio about the time the actor was leading man in such pictures as "The Great Lover," "Ladies Must Play," "Laughing Sinners" and "Strangers May Kiss."

Under cross-examination, Langan said he arranged the cash payment of $1500 from Hamilton to the blonde actress to pay "for her silence."

ASKED LANGAN AID

Langan said he first met Miss Manners through the Hamilton incident, which he said occurred at a time when he was coaching Hamilton for a part in a picture.

He told the court that Hamilton himself first brought the matter up, asking that Langan intercede with Miss Manners in order that the actor's wife might not learn of the alleged indiscretion.

Blood tests showing John Langan could be the father of Joan were introduced in court.

He's in Guardhouse, Bride, 13, in School

DETROIT, March 7 (AP)—Pvt. Howard Wilson is spending his honeymoon in the guardhouse and his 13-year-old bride has gone back to school, after going through a second marriage ceremony in Georgia because Michigan law forbids first cousins to wed.

The marriage of Wilson, who is 20 and has been in the Army four months, to Dianne Moore, a seventh-grade school girl, has had Wilson's superior officers, Dianne's family and Detroit civil authorities in a turmoil.

The girl's father opposed the union and told police the child's age had been misrepresented on the marriage license application. His complaint followed their first marriage, performed in suburban Highland Park, Mich. Then the question of consanguinity was raised.

While various investigations proceeded, Wilson went AWOL from his battalion, a military police unit stationed here, and eloped with Dianne to Rossville, Ga. Her mother and an aunt accompanied them.

Georgia permits the marriage of first cousins, and consent of Dianne's mother overcame the age obstacle. So there was a second wedding last Wednesday.

Then Wilson, returned to his post to face discipline, Dianne went back to school and her mother, Mrs. John A. Moore, went to the country clerk's office with he. attorney to institute divorce proceedings against her husband. Mrs. Moore said young Wilson, in marrying Dianne, considered only the girl's welfare, knowing that her parent's home was about to be broken up. He wished to provide the girl with an Army allotment.

18-Year-Old Soldier Vote Drive Adds N.H.

New Hampshire today became the third New England state to join the movement to obtain voting privileges for 18-year-old servicemen. The first special session of the New Hampshire legislature has been called by Gov. Blood primarily to consider soldiers' vote legislation.

In Rhode Island, veterans' organizations are united in a campaign to seek balloting privileges for younger members of the armed forces, and in Massachusetts, a bill was on file today asking legislation to provide a constitutional amendment to permit youths of 18 to vote and hold office.

The Massachusetts bill was filed by State Rep. Charles J. McCaffrey, of Brockton, with Lawrence R. Groves, clerk of the State House of Representatives. McCaffrey, who unsuccessfully sponsored similar legislation a year ago, was accompanied by two 18-year-old Wellesley Navy men, Joseph Nicolo, Fireman 2/c, of Upson rd., and Edmund Fumia, Seaman 2/c, of Manor rd., in his visit to the State House.

At Nashua, N. H., Sen. Aldege A. Noel, of Nashua, announced that "if permitted," he would introduce a bill at the special session of the Legislature called for March 21 to permit personnel of the armed services, 18 years of age or older, to vote at the national elections this fall.

"If a man is mature enough at 18 to fight and die for democracy, he is mature enough to have a voice in the preservation of that democracy," said Rep. McCaffrey, as he filed his bill.

"The average youth of today, who has received at least a high school education is intelligent and qualified mentally to absorb the affairs of government," he said.

Argentina Bans AP Dispatches

BUENOS AIRES, March 7 (AP)—Reception of Associated Press news sent by wireless from New York was banned yesterday by the Argentine government.

The government also cancelled permission for the use of a leased wire between Buenos Aires and Montevideo, charging violation of laws and rules of the country.

This action followed similar measures adopted Saturday against La Prensa Unida, United Press affiliate.

The postoffice also forbade use of any means of communication to La Prensa Ascoiada, Associated Press' Latin American subsidiary, and to the Asociacion Noticiosa Argentina, with which the AP has a news exchange agreement.

WARNS ALLIES NEW U-BOAT DRIVE NEAR

By JOHN E. LEE

LONDON, March 7 (INS)—The Allies were warned today that, though shipping losses in the Atlantic have been cut to an average of less than one out of every 1000 ships putting to sea, the Germans are planning a comeback in submarine warfare with "vastly improved U-boats."

In a revealing description of the truly amazing strides taken in the Allied war against the submarine menace, A. V. Alexander told Commons Nazi Admiral Doenitz is grimly aiming at a new test, pitting his new submersibles against vast United Nations convoys.

Doenitz, said Alexander, is having strong concrete shelters constructed at his operational bases to guard against aerial attacks.

The enemy, he said, has "at least as many" U-boats as he had at the beginning of 1943—and there is not the slightest evidence that he has abandoned his submarine campaign.

"We must expect attacks as far distant as the Indian ocean, by greatly improved U-boats," Alexander said.

French Reopen Devil's Island

ALGIERS, March 7 (AP)—Devil's Island, famed as the site of Capt. Alfred Dreyfus' exile, has been reestablished by the French Committee of National Liberation as a place for confinement of political prisoners.

The announcement was made as the treason trial of Pierre Pucheu, former Vichy minister of the interior, continued before a special military tribunal, with three former members of the National Council of Resistance, a French underground organization, demanding that he be put to death.

Ile Royale and St. Joseph's Island, in the same group off the French Guiana coast, were assigned for ordinary prisoners. The policy of sending prisoners to the Guiana penal colonies had been abandoned by the French government in 1939.

British Lose Famed Cruiser

LONDON, March 7 (AP)—The admiralty announced today the loss of the famed 5200-ton cruiser Penelope, which became known as "H. M. S. Pepperpot" after she was scarred by 2200 shell fragment holes in the battle of Malta.

The Penelope was lost with the cruiser Spartan and the destroyers Janus and Inglefield in the establishment and maintenance of the Nettuno bridgehead in Italy, Commons was informed by A. V. Alexander, first lord of the admiralty. Loss of the other vessels was announced previously. Five major assault vessels also were bridgehead casualties, Alexander said.

DENVER, March 7 (AP)—A police squad car chased its quarry through streams of traffic for seven blocks. Finally the officers blew their siren to bring all othear tarevelers to a curbside halt so they could overtake the fugitive.

The exasperated policemen lectured him for recknessness and impounded his vehicle for 10 days.

He was a 14-year-old boy on a bike.

RED CROSS AID DRIVE NEARS MILLION MARK

Contributions to the Red Cross 1944 War Fund approached the million dollar mark today in the Greater Boston campaign to reach or surpass a goal of $4,641,000 during March.

"Commerce and Industry Day" will be observed tomorrow when another Red Cross report luncheon is held at the City Club. Latest figures of receipts in the drive will be officially announced then.

The principal speaker will be Dr. Hugh Robinson, of West Newton, interned for many months by the Japanese in Manila. Dr. Robinson recently returned to America on the exchange ship Grispsholm.

LUNCHEONS ARRANGED

Subsequent luncheons will be observed as public employes' day, March 13; metropolitan day, March 16; districts day, March 20, and the victory dinner, March 22, at the Hotel Statler.

Respect of our British allies for the American Red Cross was forcibly demonstrated today when Chief Petty Officers Arthur Seymour and Francis R. Pickard, stationed in Boston, entered the Red Cross War Fund headquarters in Postoffice sq. and pledged generous donations.

"We've seen the Red Cross at work and we want to help it along any way we can," the Royal Navy officers explained. "No serviceman could ask for more help than the Red Cross gives."

SHORTEN WAR

Married and the father of a 10-year-old son he has not seen for two years, Seymour voiced the belief that success in the War Fund drive would appreciably shorten the war through the blood plasma and morale supplies it will provide.

Emmanuel Mamakos, proprietor of the Pilgrim Restaurant, Columbus ave., Roxbury Crossing, turned over his Sunday receipts of $260. His son, Anthony, is serving on a U. S. destroyer.

TWO MORE SIGN UP—Barbara Tilden is on hand at Red Cross War Fund Headquarters as Chief Petty Officers Arthur Seymour (left), and Francis Pickard of the British Royal Navy come in to make their pledges to the $4,641,000 drive.

REPUBLICANS FAVORED TO CARRY OHIO

By WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON

COLUMBUS, O., March 7 (INS)—The Republicans are favored today to carry Ohio in November's presidential election but the Democrats are rallying to a fourth term for President Roosevelt in the belief the magic of his name will give them one more victory in the Buckeye State.

The Republican organization is solidly pledged to Gov. Bricker as a favorite son candidate for the GOP nomination. It is fiercely opposed to Wendell Willkie, 1940 nominee, might shift to Gov. Dewey, but would prefer taking Sen. Taft if Bricker is eliminated.

Chances of Gen. MacArthur are dim, although Ohio would go along if a convention stampede developed for the Army leader.

The Democrats have drafted Joseph T. Ferguson, state auditor, as their favorite son, but Ferguson himself announces this is only a device to vote the State's delegation for a fourth term on the first ballot.

BINGHAMTON, N. Y., March 7 (AP)—"But this is only the beginning of March," protested Weatherman Thomas E. Reed to a telephone request for a July 14 forecast. "Yes, I know," the girl explained, "but that's the day I'm going to be married."

Hub Widow Boasts 9 Sons in Service

With nine sons already in service and a 10th soon to be inducted, Mrs. Annie Jordan, 57-year-old widow of Wyman st., Jamaica Plain, stood out today as a leading claimant to the honor of being the American mother to have the most sons in the armed forces.

A letter from Secretary of War Stimson, congratulating her for "faithful service and sacrifice;" photographs of her boys in the parlor; a special service flag presented her by the Kiwanis Club, and the star-studden service flag which she keeps in the front window, are treasures which help her keep going in the home she describes as "rather lonesome now."

"I'm awfuly proud of my boys," says Mrs. Jordan, who raised them alone since the death of her husband 16 years ago. Her three oldest boys helped support the rest of the family, and when her oldest daughter and her daughter's husband died a few years ago, she adopted her grandson, John.

Francis Jordan, 36, father of a 4-year-old boy, expects to be the 10th Jordan to take an active part in World War II. He recently was classified 1-A. The other Jordans in service are:

Joseph, 24, the first to leave home. He joined the Marines in Jan., 1942, and is now in the South Pacific.

Robert, 22, entered the Army in May, 1942. Six months later, John, 21, and George, 20, enlisted, and are now at sea with the Navy.

Richard, 19, and Edward, 34, joined the Army last year, and Bernard, 28, and Gerald, 27 entered the Navy. Philip, 32, donned his Army uniform last January.

Another son, Henry, 38, a Massachusetts State Guard member, works in a defense plant, and a married daughter, Mrs. Margaret Connors, visits often to "cheer up Ma."

Ribber in All Platoons

I've noticed a common tendency among the boys—to crack wise in proportion as the going gets tougher, the sanity-saving sense of humor.

There's a "ribber" in every platoon—the outfit's favorite clown whose lightest remark is regarded as a gem of wit by his mates.

For boredom, I find, is a relative matter which can be found as often in the midst of a gay, night-club whirl as in the tedium of field and barrack, and the men over here have found a capacity for enjoying the trivial things which they would have scorned in the old, civil life.

Things like fashioning wrist bracelets for their girls from the little, dime-size, half-shilling pieces. And there's a rub! Be-

Pfc. Carl Gnospelius Quincy

Pfc. Salvatore Biondo Waltham

cause the British monetary moguls are getting anxious about the fad of linking a dozen of these sixpence pieces together—lest it remove their small coins from circulation—as we of that first World War ruined millions of French two-franc pieces in the making of siver rings.

Intense Loyalist

The American soldier is an intense loyalist who regards his company as the "best dam outfit" in the best regiment of the best division.

He'll fight you over that! And he usually thinks his billet is a model of comfort—be it ever so lousy! This is partly because they haven't seen how the other 99-100th of the Army live—some worse, some better.

There's an artillery post some miles down the road, where the writer visited. The huts are ranged in orderly rows, with nothing in between, and nothing much beyond except the moist plowed furrows, the hedgerows and leafless trees.

But because it is high and dry, the lads consider themselves in clover. And by some standards I've seen, they are. Soldiers such as Pvt. Arthur R. Hollis, 1000 North Union st., Rockland, a fineman in the wire section, who liked to bowl candle pins in the Hatherly Church League, and received some Vicks Vapor-rub from his sister, Mrs. Dorothy L. Hutchin-

And Sergt. Walter "Swede" Swenson of 17 Porter st., Everett, who worked for E. B. Robbins Disinfectant Co., and was a member of the North Everett A. C., of which Harold Pitts was prexy.

And Sergt. John F. Price of 3 Grove st., Wakefield, who pitched for the Greenwood Town team, married Esther (Purrington) 2 years ago this April, and drove a taxi for Bullard Motors.

And Pvt. Clement S. LeBlanc of 8½ Herbert st., Salem, whose fondest recollection is the beer he drank with Eddie Talbot at the Palmer Cove Cafe.

And Pfc. Salvatore Biondo of 82 Exchange st., Waltham, whose

Hike to Town

And Pfc. James B. Carleton of 190 I st., Southie, who once played handballat L st., and was a carrier from the South Station postoffice.

And Corp. Werner B. Staff of 46 Bartlett ave., Arlington, an exclerk for H. B. Hood's store on Mass. ave., and hung out in Sam's Drug Store, with pal, Gil Johnson.

And Corp. Charles Snow Parsons of 169 Winnisimett st., Chelsea, whose hobby was collecting classical records, and worked for Art Lush of Rawson Electrical.

calls "the big raffle"—i. e., being drafted.

Like thousands of other soldiers, these boys lie miles from the nearest English town. It's nothing to see them trudge the distance on foot, just to get look at the store windows, sip a mug of brew—and then trudge back again.

Begin Eliminations In Oratory Test

Work on their eliminations are already being begun this week by college and high school student entrants in the John Paul Jones nationwide oratory contest sponsored by the Hearst newspapers.

Names of winners in the schools and colleges may be submitted as late as March 24, but it is better to send them in as soon as possible. Not many weeks remain for the Boston eliminations, which will be held March 31 in Faneuil Hall, only a week after the entry-closing date.

At the Faneuil Hall exercises, absolute fairness is guaranteed, as the number system will be used. Neither the chairman nor the judges will know what college or school a contestant represents. Names of the chairman and judges will be announced later.

Boston College, Tufts and Jackson, are among the latest colleges to enter the contest, of which Adm Ernest J. King, Navy commander-in-chief, is honorary chairman. Boston University has also joined the competition, through Prof. William G. Hoffman, head of the English department.

Among the long list of educators endorsing the contest, which honors America's greatest Revolutionary naval hero, are John Woodruff, director of public speaking at Tufts and Jackson, and Prof. Harold Blanchard, head of the English department at these two institutions.

Also among the enthusiastic endorsers was Mabel E. Bowker, headmaster of the High School of Practical Arts, whose students were among the outstanding in the Thomas Jefferson bicentennial contest a year ago.

South Boston Gunner Commended by Navy

For shooting down an enemy plane while serving as a member of a Navy armed guard unit aboard a merchantman, Douglas Wilson Kaake, 25, boatswain's mate, first class, of Telegraph st., Boston, was commended officially by the Navy Department today.

"At the height of the engagement in Algiers Harbor on May 13, 1943, you sighted a bomber, unobserved by other guns, coming in on the port bow," his commendation reads. "Catching the enemy squarely in the sights, your gun made a direct hit and the plane burst into flames, crashing to its destruction on the docks."

Another commendation went to Henry Stanley Smith, 22, boilermaker first class, USN, of Woodside ave., Pawtucket, R. I., "for outstanding professional skill and devotion to duty" in making underwater repairs to his ship."

Convoy Losses Now Less Than 1 in 1000

LONDON, March 7 (AP)—Allied convoy losses were less than one ship in 1000 in the second half of 1943, First Lord of the Admiralty A. V. Alexander told Commons today.

He warned, however, that Adm. Karl Doenitz' U-boats "will try and try again to stage a comeback."

Alexander disclosed officially that the Mediterranean route to the East is in full use and said its reopening "is worth about a million gross tons, and the liberation of North Africa and Italy together have brought in half as much again in actual ships."

He declared the British fleet now is stronger "in relation to enemy naval strength" than it had been since the fall of France.

He disclosed that 13 British warships had been sunk on Russian convoy duty and, while merchant ship losses there were heavy, 88 per cent of the cargoes got through.

Only two of 11 blockade runners sent from apan toward Germany in the past 12 months reached port and both were damaged, he reported.

Other facts and figures laid before the lawmakers, along with a request for naval appropriations in an undisclosed amount:

The British merchant ship output up to the end of 1943 appreciably exceeded the total for the last war and warship output was nearly equal.

The Navy, while devoting its immediate effort to the coming assaults on Europe "is looking beyond them to the time when we shall descend with our full might on the Japanese."

Total losses of the Royal Navy and the European Allied navies in the Mediterranean since the start of the Sicilian campaign were two cruisers, one mine layer 10 destroyers, two submarines, 10 minor war vessels.

5 Die in Bomber Crash

SHREVEPORT, La., March 7 (INS)—Six Barksdale Field fliers were killed 60 miles southeast of here when their medium bomber crashed and exploded, Army officials announced today. None of victims was from New England.

inks, Tiraspol and Odessa on the Odessa-Warshaw line. The Russians are but 5 miles east of Lwow itself.

If Marshal Zhukov can continue the pace of his offensive—15 to 30 miles daily—he may soon be throwing the German army back into Rumania, for routes to Germany and Poland are imperilled.

Outnumbered, 20 to 1 By Reds, Nazis Claim

STOCKHOLM, March 7 (AP)—German-censored reports from Berlin today pictured official quarters there as apprehensive of the giant Russian offensive south of Lwow, describing the battle as the final Russian attempt to annihilate the German army.

The Germans estimate Red army strength in the Lwow-Odessa sector at 35 divisions.

The Germans acknowledged their troops were retreating to new positions and declared the Soviet forces were 20 times greater than the Germans.

The German dispatches also said new Russian attacks had started in the direction of the Orsha-Minsk highway.

Injured JVA Girl Carries On

Though Ruth Linder, 12, of Loring rd., Weston, is now handicapped, she has proved a valiant soldier in the Junior Victory Army, and as soon as she is able, will resume her duties on the home front.

Here is a recent letter received from her at JVA headquarters:

"I am proud to belong to the Junior Victory Army.

"I am laid up with a broken ankle. I had a separation of a bone so it will be a long time before I will be able to use my foot. The doctor says between six and nine months.

"Before I broke my ankle I collected 500 lbs. of paper, 20 lbs. of kitchen fats and about 3000 magazines. I did it all alone.

"Since I have been in bed, I fold papers for the Town and put them in envelopes. I also make scrap books for the Newton Hospital. When I was well I took care of the neighbors' children. I earned $71.50 which goes into defense stamps."

To join the JVA, send your name, age and address to Junior Victory Army headquarters, P. O. Box 228, Boston, Mass. If, in addition to enlistment, you want the JVA insignia pin and membership card, enclose a 10-cent coin well-wrapped in your letter.

BACK FROM HELL . . . . By Burris Jenkins, Jr.

"...THEY DIVE INTO A WALL OF FIRE—THE LAST LIVING MEMBERS OF THE 'PADDY GREMLIN JR.'..."
"BRACED IN THE RADIO COMPARTMENT HE FEELS THE FORT'S LAST MOTOR SLICE THE TREES..."
"FOR A HALF HOUR EDDIE STUMBLES ALONG BESIDE THE ENGLISH KID, UNTIL EXHAUSTION OVERCOMES HIM..."
BURRIS JENKINS

"HOLD everything!" yells the pilot, "I'm going to try for it. Here we go—"

And then they hit the trees . . . Eddie doesn't see the trees. Braced in the radio compartment with his back against the extra transmitter, his feet jammed into the ammunition cans piled in a heap against the rack, he feels the heavy boom-boom-boom as momentum and the failing power of the battered Fort's last motor slice the tall poplars in rythmic precision and then the shock and a blinding flame.

Now there is the radio hatch open above and the radio operator in his seat sitting stunned, too, beside him, looking up at the hatch sealed over solid with white fire from the burning gasoline and trees, and with one thought and without words they run stumbling over the ball turret to the other escape door and throw it open.

A blast of heat and flame hurls them back—the last living members of the crew of the Paddy Gremlin, Jr., on her last and 15th raid . . .

There was no way of knowing then what had happened to the three who had bailed out over the Channel. That was leaving the French coast for home when the second motor stopped.

From the tail gun Sergt. Eddie Bronski had seen the flares arc out in the dusk to signal down fighter protection because with both inboards gone—one burning since they left the target—the Paddy Gremlin, Jr., couldn't hope to keep speed and altitude with the formation.

So about 20 Thunderbolts came down to cover them and everything seems all right until the No. 3 prop flies off over the Channel and for all Eddie knows the old B-17 is shimmying herself to pieces before they get the No. 2 feathered.

Still Eddie isn't too worried The skipper's brought them home on two motors before and compared with raids like that Schweinfurt mission this trip is a picnic. No enemy fighters in sight all day! Not that Sergt. Bronski particularly yearns to add to his accredited two FW's and one ME-109. In fact lots of times Eddie has been too tired after a mission where he was sure he'd knocked down planes to bother with long questioning and filling out papers. He just let 'em go.

The Pilot Gives Orders To Bail Out

But when at 5:15 p. m. he hears the pilot give orders to bail out, that, coming from the skipper, is serious. Far more serious than the nasty flak over the target that got the navigator and the No. 3 motor. Tough about the navigator. He was a new man, on his second mission and he got it bad from shrapnel in his side, arm and leg. He probably wouldn't live anyhow even if . . .

Eddie crawls back into the fuselage and is standing by the door when the left waist gunner bails out. And then the ball turret gunner jumps, and the other waist gunner. It takes a lot of persuasion to make them jump. The skipper finally has to order them out. (Maybe they had a premonition they'd never be picked up . . .)

When Eddie's turn comes he too puts up an argument.

"Are you going to bail, skipper?" he asks the pilot over the interphones.

When the pilot answers no, Eddie tells him:

"Well, I'm sticking with you, sir."

"No you're not," snaps the pilot, "and that's an order!"

Still Eddie stalls.

"What do you figure our altitude is skipper?" he asks.

The instruments have all been shaken out with the shimmying. The pilot has to look overside and guess.

"About 600," he replied doubtfully, then adds, "Well, all right. Get in the radio room, brace yourself and prepare for ditching."

The End of Paddy Gremlin, Jr.

About this time land appears in the forming light close under the wings and the skipper calls, "Hold on, I'm going to try and make it—it's up to you to jump or stay . . ." because all at once out of rooftops and trees a beautifully camouflaged airfield unrolls beneath them right on the coast and although they have already overshot the runway, the pilot decided to circle back for a landing. They're so low now they can look down chimneys and the pilot revs the last spurt out of the two engines for the turn. They roar open wide, sucking up everything, and the pilot pulls up hard. Then the No. 4 motor quits . . .

That's the end of the Paddy Gremlin . . .

Trapped in flame before the open door, Eddie Bronski, one time captain and roving guard on the Amesbury, Mass., football team, knows his chances are paper-slim of getting out alive through that wall of fire, but there's nothing else to do and not a second to think about it. He dives out the door, Mac, the radio operator, behind him.

There is one moment of intense heat and then he isn't aware of burning at all but keeps running through the burning brush, his right hand over his face mostly on the left side and eye and then he is in a woods with the whole front of his flying suit burned off and the back burning. He rolls on the ground to put it out and then stands up to look for Mac. He calls for him, but Mac doesn't answer. Eddie starts back for him toward the plane when the ammunition starts popping in the guns and the cases as the blaze smothers the wreck.

Eddie can't think straight. "To hell with it!" he croaks aloud. "To everlasting hell with everything!" In half-crazed delirium he crawls for a while to escape what he imagines may be flying bullets. Then he stands up and starts walking—he doesn't know where nor why.

He walks maybe 15 minutes before he meets anyone, holding mummy-skinned hands high to stop the oily brown fluid dripping on the leaves. If the sight of a hairless head and face of white wrinkled parchment shocks the two English kids who appear on the path they don't show it.

"How do I get to a road?" Eddie asks still holding up his hands.

"Put your arm on my shoulders. I'll direct you," says one of the kids while the other runs toward the wreckage.

"No," says Eddie, "I can make it."

Stumbles Along With the Two Kids

For a half hour it seems Eddie stumbles along beside the kid until exhaustion overcomes him just as they reach the road where a car is already approaching. It stops and two men help Eddie in, turn around and drive to the hospital. (He doesn't remember what became of the kid.)

A few minutes later, they bring Mac—Tech. Sergt. Edward T. McGovern from Brooklyn—into the hospital. He can't walk. They're carrying him.

Until four that first morning two nurses peeled skin in strips from Eddie's hands and face. "It's no extra pain," and from where his fingernails were all burned off, and when at last he had to close his eyes the lids can't open again.

Mac, blinded when he reached the hospital, didn't know if his blindness was permanent or not, but Eddie could tell the doctors there was nothing wrong with his vision as soon as they could separate the eyelids.

For that first week and a half no one thought either Eddie or Mac could make it. Their temperatures ran above 103 and during that whole time Eddie doesn't remember sleeping at all.

But he and Mac never stopped fighting and finally arrived the day when they cut slits in Eddie's face bandage and though the lids would fill up with fluid and glue together after a half hour it wasn't long—only five weeks—until he could keep them open enough to read.

And Mac's eyesight came back—though he still wears dark glasses—and he was out of bed after two months. It took Eddie three. From adjoining beds, which they've shared ever since this happened last August, Mac told how he wandered sightless out of the flames and found his way to a farmhouse—he doesn't remember how.

They're getting their first furloughs now so their families can see them "before and after." You see they have to return to Halloran General Hospital for months of plastic surgery before they get all their features back, and things like ears and noses.

Expressions—Complete concentration on the problem at hand is to be seen in the faces of these citizens crowding the counters at the Internal Revenue Colector's office where they are seeking aid in filling out their income tax returns.

No Time for Apathy

A FORCEFUL reminder that juvenile delinquency is still one of America's biggest problems has been issued by the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

After reviewing the deplorable increase in crime and vice among youth, the Bureau warns:

"When compared with arrests in 1941, the figures for 1943 show that arrests of girls under 21 increased 130.4 PER CENT.

"These figures indicate that the factors contributing to delinquency are still very powerful, and point to the need for each community to intensify its efforts to stop the rising tide of delinquency and juvenile crime.

"ALL OF THE CONSTRUCTIVE INFLUENCES WHICH AN AROUSED COMMUNITY CAN PROVIDE ARE URGENTLY NEEDED TO COMBAT THIS MENACE TO OUR INTERNAL STRENGTH."

Many cities and towns are striving to save their seriously endangered young people, BUT FEW OF THEM ARE DOING ENOUGH.

Responsible persons become momentarily aroused, make ambitious plans and then lapse into apathy as spectacular happenings at home and abroad attract and hold their interest.

Meanwhile juvenile delinquency spreads, finds thousands of new victims to stigmatize and rapidly approaches epidemic proportions.

The campaign against juvenile delinquency must be a 24-hour-a-day, seven-days-a-week, 52-weeks-in-the-year battle.

It is a battle in every sense and meaning of the word, for on its successful outcome rests the fate of a generation of Americans—the generation that will be called upon to rebuild the country out of the ruin and wreckage of war.

Why Boston Is Happier

A MAN visiting Boston after a year's absence recently remarked that the people seemed brighter and more cheerful.

He found those with whom he talked as realistic as ever about the war and as grimly determined to win it.

But he could not help commenting favorably on the absence of pessimism and defeatism.

We were much impressed by the visitor's observation, for we had noticed the changed attitude, too.

It began with the lifting of the depressing dim-out restrictions which had cast an impenetrable pall of gloom over every one and everything for more than a year.

Our Boston experience in this respect has been similar to Britain's. There, even when the Battle of Britain was at its worst, the people demonstrated an ability to endure prolonged bombings, disastrous fires and personal injuries.

BUT THEY COULD NOT ENDURE PERPETUAL DARKNESS.

Later when statistics were assembled and published, no one was surprised to learn that most of the suicides and much of the increase in crime were attributed not to the bombardment, BUT TO THE BLACK-OUT.

The person who convinced the military and defense authorities that the no-light regulations had ceased to serve a useful purpose in Boston and New England is one of the unsung heroes of this war.

We hope he some day sheds his anonymity and gets the medal of honor he deserves.

Let All Servicemen Vote

GOVERNOR BLOOD of New Hampshire has issued a proclamation for a special session of that State's legislature to act on votes for service men and women.

The Governor is doing his official duty.

Soldiers, sailors and marines who are fighting this war should be permitted to cast real ballots in the manner that the Constitution provides.

But the Governor will make a serious mistake if he does not also request the legislature to extend the voting privilage to service men of eighteen, nineteen and twenty years of age.

It would be a grievous injustice for the New Hampshire legislature or any other legislature to deny them a voice in the government they are defending.

Spring Cleaning for Boston

MAYOR TOBIN has designated the week of March 27 as SPRING CLEANING TIME in Boston.

All the forces and facilities of the city's Public Works and Health departments will be put to work on the job of making streets spic and span before Easter.

This should be a challenge to landlords and home owners to make their property cleaner and more attractive.

Of course the labor shortage is apt to discourage extensive repairs and improvements.

But that is no excuse for trash-littered lawns, obstructed walks and unsightly alleys.

Most people are well able to use brooms, rakes and shovels. Besides, the open air and exercise will do them good.

And his cares dividing.
—SAMUEL ROGERS.

IN THE ABOVE Mr. Rogers was referring to an "ideal wife." I hope those of our subscribers who still have their husbands at home are living up to this standard . . . As an aid to the morale of the public, baseball should be continued. Such is the argument of those who want major league ball as usual. I say let baseball go on but let it be semi-pro baseball played by lads under 18, men over 38 and men who work in war plants. You can shout all you want about reading the major league baseball scores being a morale builder for men in the armed forces but I do not believe reading about husky fellows, playing for large salaries in peaceful areas and doing everything possible to avoid military service does much for the morale of a man fighting in the jungles of the Southwest Pacific or on the beachheads of Italy. In fact, I would never have suggested major league baseball being discontinued if I had not received so many letters from fighting men indicating anger at physically-fit professional baseball, and football players and boxers avoiding service or being placed in deferred classifications.

SIDELIGHTS: "What attracts us in a woman rarely binds us to her," said Churton Collins. Of course, Mr. Collins was exactly right. His observation is something the "oomph girls" should keep in mind. Their beauty will attract a husband, but it will take something more than that to hold him. We shall dwell further on this point in an early issue . . . Note there is a pamphlet titled "The Bathroom of Tomorrow." I shall have to send for a copy and see what may be expected in bathrooms of the future. I hope they will have a special cabinet for medicine and separate cabinets for Mama, Papa and the children. Also, non-slippable bathtubs. And easily regulated showers. Also, hope the bathroom of tomorrow will be as large as the master bedrooms are today.

BRIEFLY: Am informed one U. S. Navy man has been away so long without leave he has never seen his daughter who is now over two years old. Sounds like a record to me. I mean there probably is no other man in the armed services with an older child he has not seen . . . A Baltimore wife says she accomplished a number of things for the family by her ideas and advice but her husband never gives her credit. That's too bad. Recalls the husband in Dickens' "Bleak House" who said: "It is my old girl that advises. She has the head. But I never own to it before her. Discipline must be maintained."

BIRTH CONTROL, ETC.: Mrs. Lavina Mary Williams, widow of a Civil War veteran, recently passed on at the age of 94. She is survived by six children, 33 grandchildren, 65 great-grandchildren and 10 great-great-grandchildren. Evidently Mrs. Williams and her descendants did not believe in birth control. More power to them. As I said before, this country owes a lot to people who have been against birth control. A country of birth control followers could never raise that army of 10,000,000 we need to keep the United States way of living as we want it to be.

QUERIES FROM CLIENTS: Q.—The second lieutenant says Ring Lardner wrote a column for a New York newspaper. The captain says Ring wrote a column in Chicago but never in New York. How about it? A—The second lieutenants seem much smarter in this war than in the last. Ring Lardner wrote a column for the New York Morning Telegraph in 1928. Gene Fowler was managing editor of that sheet at that time. It also had on its staff Westbrook Pegler, Clem McCarthy and Walter Winchell, who wrote a column using the nom de plume "Beau Broadway." . . . Q—My name is Jerry. My wife's name is Kay. We have named our son Kerry. Some people say Kerry sounds like a girl's name. What do you think? A—Doesn't sound like a girl's name to me. I think it is a good name for the lad.

A CHICAGOAN WRITES: "My grandfather, who died at the age of 103 as the result of an accident, never wore glasses, and was never sick a day in his life until the accident, smoked a pipe continuously and liked to have a pint of good liquor daily. He was active until the end; chopped wood, brought in coal, put out the ashes and did a number of odd jobs. The doctor said his longevity was due to a strong heart."

My Day By Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt

MIAMI, Fla., Monday—Exactly at noon on the fourth of March, Miss Thompson and I left Washington. It was raining. The President and Anna and one or two others came to see us off. I am glad that during this trip there will be some young life in the White House, as it makes it a more cheerful place for anyone who happens to stay there.

Almost before we knew it, the skies began to clear and by the time we reached Palm Beach, Fla., it was warm and sunny. Mrs. Donner Winser and my grandson, William, met us at the airport with Gen. Alexander and Col. Deemer. We arranged to be at the hospital by 8:30 Sunday morning. We had a quiet dinner. Afterwards a number of Betty Winser's friends came in.

ON THE WAY DOWN IN THE plane, I had a chance to talk with several of my fellow passengers. Among them was a young navigator who had been on a bomber plane in the Philippines. He was missing for two years, and as he told me the story, I kept thinking of what his family must have gone through. How hard it must have been to keep up hope during such a long period of anxiety without word of any kind.

He described calling up his family when he was back here and free to call them. He told them he would be home the following Monday morning. Then he said: "They met every train between that time and when I arrived."

SEVERAL OF THE BOYS brought their short-snorter bills to be signed, and one of them told me he had been two or three times around the world. Another passenger said he came from Washington and had a daughter named Mary Patricia Hanlon, whose mother would be thrilled to see her name in the paper. So here are my good wishes to Patricia.

HOLLYWOOD, March 7 — An entire new screen life should unfold for Lee Bowan when he joins Columbia. He is a good actor, but he has never really had a chance on the Metro lot where there are so many top male leads.

Columbia has few, if any, male stars, and Bowman will get his chance with Jean Arthur in "The Impatient Years."

Jean Arthur

Yes, Jean has decided to make the picture! Someone said the other day that only Lee Bowman could play the John Barrymore role in "Good Night, Sweet Prince," but of course that vehicle will probably belong to Paramount. While I am not sure about the Barrymore role, I do think Lee is deserving of a good break, a better one than he has yet had in the movies.

"THE SULLIVANS," which Sam Jaffe bought in partnership with Lloyd Bacon, should be a gold mine it is so popular. At any rate it has inspired Sam to go out and buy "Blood on the Sun," by Garrett Fort, author of "The Lost Patrol." Jaffe has formed a producing company to make this and other pictures with test for David Selznick. So if RKO as producer, Merle Oberon has been offered the lead in "Blood on the Sun," although no contracts with her have yet been signed. The story is that of a newspaperman on the Tokyo Chronicle who knew the Japs were preparing to attack Pearl Harbor. May or may not be a 20th Century-Fox release.

CHICAGO IS LUCKY for Pamela Britton, 19-year-old actress, as it has been for many of us. Pamela is in the "Oklahoma" company there. She sings two of the hits—"All or Nothing" and "Can't Say No," in this musical. She is blonde and a beauty, and when a M-G-M scout saw her and heard her sing in "Windy City" he promptly signed her for the lead role in "The Harvey Girls." Pam will head for Hollywood and movie fame—M-G-M hopes—in about six weeks, possibly sooner.

NIVEN BUSCH is eager to borrow Susan Hayward from Paramount for his novel, "Duel in the Sun." The reason for Niven's interest is because his bride, Teresa Wright, told her husband that nobody in Hollywood could play that role but Susan. The girl in the book, Pearl Chavez, is almost as colorful as Scarlett O'Hara. Remember, it was the role of Scarlett that brought Susan to Hollywood some years ago to make a test for Dovid Selznick. So if RKO listens to Busch's suggestion (and if Papa is agreeable) well, Susie will play Pearl Chavez.

SNAPSHOTS OF HOLLYWOOD COLLECTED AT RANDOM: Inscribed in a ring Academy Award winner Paul Lukas gave Daisy on their 16th wedding anniversary is "For Service Far Beyond the Line of Duty"; Lionel Barrymore has been elected to the board of the American Artists' Professional League, a well deserved honor; Bob Crosby has taken over the management of lightweight fighter Frankie Terry; Harry James claims his new daughter is a beauty and looks just like Betty Grable; Mrs. Ernst Lubitsch is reported greatly interested in a young paratrooper. Little Nicola has been living with her dad and has a mind as agile as that of her director-father; Johnny Campbell, one of the "Sullivans" and Rosemarie Ward have settled down to steady dating; Whoops! Johnny Weissmuller had his long locks shorn when he started work for Pine and Thomas; Mrs. John Wayne is ill with flu. John gets back March 15 from his overseas tour but so far there is no hint of a reconciliation; Fred MacMurray is suffering from arthritis. That's all today. See you tomorrow!

NEW YORK, March 7 — A columnist's fan mail, as it is laughingly called in the privacy of the office, consists of information, complaints and questions, in the order named. I will now pick up the envelopes on my desk one by one and answer any questions contained therein to the best of my ability.

Read on. This may never happen again.

Q—Are most New York night clubs owned by gangsters?

A—No. Some are, and have been since the Prohibition days, but the boys in question stay far in the background and let ultra-respectable stooges "front" for them. In 99 per cent of the cases, the mobsters in the back office insist that the clubs be run legitimately—so in such salons checks are not hiked, the food is usually good, and the entertainment, when there is any, lavish.

Q—ARE YOU ON Frank Sinatra's payroll?

A—No, darn it.

Q—Have you a dog?

A—No. I have ice blue rugs.

Q—Is Alan Jones' hair naturally curly?

A—Yes. On rainy days it gets even curlier.

Q—Are the "You can't print thats" you write true stories?

A—Yes, every one of them. Sometimes I change a few facts to spare the character the embarrassment of being too readily identified—but the stories all actually happened.

Q—Have you read any good books lately?

A—Yes. "Home Sweet Homicide," by Craig Rice, is a mystery story with a fresh flavor and genuine charm.

Q—Who is your favorite movie actress?

A—Merle Oberon.

Q—Who is your favorite movie actor?

A—Jimmy Cagney.

Q—Does Broadway Rose really exist or is she a figment of your imagination?

A—Some figment! . . . She exists, all right. She is a young crone of the Broadway dawns, dingy, pesky and pathetic. Some people say she has more money than you and I put together, but if she has, it isn't worth it.

Q—HOW MUCH do you weigh?

A—A hundred and nineteen. Why do you ask?

Q—Is Cary Grant a good-looking off the screen as he is on?

A—Mmmm, MMMMMM! He's even better looking.

Q—If you were a serviceman on leave and wanted to take your girl out on a big evening for about $25, where would you go?

A—For cocktails to one of the restaurants around the Plaza in Rockefeller Center (it's very romantic at dusk, and you can watch the skaters)—dinner at Toots Shor's (that eliminates one taxi ride), "Angel Street," and Billy Rose's Diamond Horseshoe after the theater.

Q—Would you rather be brainy or beautiful?

A—Beautiful.

Q—What is your secret ambition?

A—To be lazy.

NEW YORK, March 7—Bing Crosby, Bob Hope and Dorothy Lamour are getting ready to do a scene for "The Road to Utopia." In this particular sequence, Bing, Bob and Dottie are traveling along the Yukon trail, and Dottie is supposed to shed the bearskin coat she is wearing and reveal herself in her scanty sarong.

Dorothy Lamour

The setting must represent winter, the wind must be howling, but also, Dottie standing there in her sarong, must not reveal that she is freezing. A technician has a suggestion.

"How about having the wind machines blowing over as many salamanders?" (That's what they call the heaters.) "This would keep Dottie warm while the scene remained the same."

The heaters are ordered, and the scene gets started.

It shows Bing and Bob starting toward the camera along a Yukon trail. They see Dottie, clad in the accepted regalia of the Far North, coming toward them.

Bob grabs Bing and exclaims: "It can't be!"

Bing answers: "It looks like her, but I never saw her dressed before."

It is then that Dorothy Lamour drops her coat and hat and stands there in a scanty sarong.

"The Hays Office," says Hope, "will never permit that."

"Why not?" asks Crosby "It complies with government regulations. Isn't it 20 per cent withholding?"

GARY COOPER and Nunnally Johnson are sitting on the set of "Casanova Brown," while Director Sam Wood is busy arranging the set-up.

Coop is "Casanova Brown" and Johnson is the writer-producer who wrote the part for him and cast him. "My trouble," Nunnally says, "was not getting a leading man or a leading lady, but getting a three weeks' old baby."

Nunnally went on to say that he had no difficulty interesting Coop in playing the role of "Casanova Brown" and that Teresa Wright is a most charming leading lady, but that there is an important part in the picture which must be played by a three weeks' old baby.

"That was the big casting problem," said Nunnally. "We searched and searched and then, finally, found a baby the correct age and with a face that would make the audience gasp 'Ah, how lovely!'

"But now," continued Nunnally, "that we had discovered the baby we encountered obstacles. The mother was willing for her three weeks' old daughter to play the role but the father wasn't.

"We told the father how difficult it was for any person to get started in the movies. And here was a wonderful opportunity for his daughter—an important role in a Gary Cooper picture. The father finally agreed to consider it."

The outcome, however, was that the father wouldn't give his consent. He said: "I don't want any daughter of mine fooling around with a lot of actors."

Listen, World!

"QUEER, isn't it? As tragic a problem as war itself. Perhaps the root of all wars."

I knew he'd been talking largely to himself for he started when asked—"Meaning what, B. E.?"

"Aw," he grinned sheepishly, "I was just thinking about some of the letters I get from the front. How all the differences stop when they once hit the front line and face the music together. If only they could think like that, feel like that, without a war. If only they could carry that feeling home with them."

He stopped and I saw his sensitive face darken with pain. These weren't just words, these things he was saying.

"I know war's bad stuff," he went on, "yet there's another side to it. It does something to those youngsters that all the peace and comfort cannot seem to accomplish. Fuses them together, somehow. Every news release tells the story—how brave Americans of every breed and blood—Catholics, Jews, Protestants, Mexicans, Indians—are fighting and dying together as a team.

"THERE WAS that story from Puerto Rico last year—that crash of a Navy plane. Three men killed—a Protestant, a Catholic and a Jew—Lieut. Edward M. Vogel, Izzie Goldberg and Edwin J. Sipowsky. I suppose those boys had been as far apart at home as our present idea of 'democracy' could push them. But there weren't any 'racial differences' between them in that last flight. They were all Americans . . . they were buried side by side with naval honors, with the prayers of a priest, a rabbi and a pastor easing their way.

"Tough—when you think we must have war to bring us together like that! Yet here at home, where we're supposed to be struggling to keep the home fires burning, to keep democracy alive, you find all the old vicious race and religious discrimination . . .

"You hear 100 per cent Americans boasting of their ideals—then you turn around and investigate the schools which are the supposed-to-be shrine of democracy—with their 'secret societies' from Junior High up. Yet how many of them will accept a Jew, though his people have served America and preserved its culture for generations.

"Given their own choice there is no discrimination between them, Elsie. They die together at the battlefront. Why can't they live together in the home town?"

You answer him. I'll be waiting to read your praise — or your alibi.

Busy Salesgirls

By BETTY ALDEN

"MY DEAH! she's just a shopgirl," haughty matrons used to say. But nowadays these same matrons are apt to have their own daughters wait on them or find the salesgirl made her debut at a lavish pre-war orchid ball.

Many of the smartest women in society today have joined the ranks of working gals. In the Copley Square district you'll find enough pretty and capable girls behind the counters of various shops to fill a couple of pages of the social register.

They include Mrs. Rodney Cooke (Jean Adams), Rosamond Higgins, Yvonne Jackson, Mrs. James Carter (Juliet Greene), Mrs. Albion Drinkwater (Cynthia Harrison), all working in the popular bookshop near Arlington st. Jean, noted as one of the Bay State's most able women fliers, has had to give up aviation and aerial photography for the duration because civilian flying is curtailed. Her husband is a commander in the Pacific. Mrs. Greene and Mrs. Drinkwater are also wives of servicemen overseas. Rosie Higgins, one of the peppiest and most popular of the '38-39 debs, has a strenuous social schedule on the side and will be a waitress at the Vincent show. Yvonne lives in Weston and formerly taught dancing with Dana Sieveling.

Working is not just a temporary fad to these girls for they've had their jobs a long time. They keep posted on current events and read every book that comes out so they can pick out books for customers.

A few doors up Boylston st., Margie Fry, whose fiance is ovreseas, works at a swanky jewelry store. Nancy Delano and her sister Sally, are salesgirls in a haberdashery that bears their family name, and Kitty Pentecost and Freddy Palmer are socialite salesgirls in the Boston branch of a Gotham shop.

DEBS WHO SING and dance in the Vincent show take the bows. But their older sisters who sell flowers at each performance make a big contribution to the color and success of the benefit for Vincent Memorial Hospital.

At this year's show, March 23-25, in John Hancock Hall, flower vendors will include those two attractive Burrage sisters, Mrs. William B. Chace and Mrs. Norman Armour, Jr., who are staying with their parents while their husbands are abroad. Also donning the Vincent's traditional lavendar dress and frilly apron to sell posies will be Helen Mitchell, Mrs. Peter H. Clark, Enid Fessenden, Sue Gilman, Jeanne Jouett, Joan MacDuffie, Ann Matheis, Jane A. Patterson, Ann Williams, Mrs. Charles G. Rice, Patricia Saltonstall, Hope Morse, Pauline Moffat, Jane G. Dustan, Nancy Brown, Caroline Busk, Alison Smith, Mrs. P. Shaw Sprague, Lee Withington and many more.

THE HONOR of pouring midmorning coffee for elite music lovers at tomorrow's Morning Musicale falls to Mrs. Richard Mayosmith, Mrs. Charles Milton Spofford, Mrs. Paul D. Sheeline, Mrs. Walter Gray Phippen, Mrs. W. A. Gallup, Mrs. R. G. Emerson, Mrs. Joseph Wogan and Mrs. Bartholomew Brickley.

N. J. Soldiers May Marry by Proxy

TRENTON, N. J., March 7 (AP)—A bill which would permit men of the armed forces serving outside the United States to marry their New Jersey sweethearts by proxy was approved yesterday by the State Senate.

The measure, which will now go to the Assembly and governor for approval, would authorize a girl to get from her local bureau of vital statistics two proxy marriage applications.

After she and her serviceman filled them out and a male over 18 designated as a proxy, the bride-to-be would be issued a marriage license. The marriage ceremony could be performed by either a religious or a civil official.

While the bill would waive a blood test for the serviceman, the girl would have to meet this requirement.

Test Flight Effect On Hatching Eggs

WASHINGTON, March 7 (AP)—An almost fowl deed is being done.

Somewhere between here and Los Angeles, 180 expectant eggs are aboard an American Airlines plane heading west.

A professor of poultry husbandry at University of Maryland, Dr. Morley A. Jull, wants to find out whether they can fly better as eggs, or as young chicks just starting out in life.

Results will show feasibility of sending hatching eggs to liberated countries.

SHE'LL SING—Shirley Dennis, Maytair songstress and servicemen's favorite, has offered to entertain at the next show sponsored by the Record-American-Advertiser at the Buddies Club on the Common.

"The Purple Heart"

'The Purple Heart' Opens Thursday, at Para-Fenway

"The Purple Heart," 20th Century-Fox epic of American valor inspired by one of the most spectacular feats of the war against Japan, will be given its local premiere at the Paramount and Fenway Theaters Thursday.

It is the hard-hitting story based on the experiences of the eight Yankee fliers who were captured after the bombing of the Japanese capital . . . the heroic Americans who were tried as war criminals and executed by the Japanese military government. Throughout the tortuous inquisition, the fliers never tell more than their names and rank, in accordance with the oath they took before starting on the mission.

The principal characters are eight men who flew with Capt. Doolittle as far as occupied China, and the Japanese captors who sentenced them to death for murder. The brilliant cast of players features Dana Andrews, Richard Conte, Charles Russell, Donald Barry, Kevin O'Shea, Sam Levene, John Craven and Farley Granger.

Ellington Here Thursday

Duke Ellington and his orchestra headline a smart sepia stage show due Thursday on the RKO Boston stage. "Three Russian Girls," with Anna Sten and Kent Smith, will be the screen attraction.

The Duke, who is as welcome at Carnegie and Symphony Halls as he is at the Boston, has long been famous as America's genius of jazz. His compositions include "Sophisticated Lady," "Mood Indigo," "Black and Tan Fantasy" and "Don't Get Around Much Any More." Johnny Hodges and Ray Nance are featured with the band.

Apus and Estrileta, comedy team, and the fast-stepping dance team of Cooke and Brown are favorites on the bill.

Not Agreeable Companions

People who demand that everyone cater to them, treat them with white kid gloves, aren't very bright. They never know how many things they miss out on, pleasant occasions in which they aren't included because they are too much trouble to cope with them—MRS. BEECKMAN.

The Correct Thing

DON'T DO THIS! Don't form the habit of "fussing over" others. Constantly straightening his tie, fixing his coat collar, picking almost-invisible threads or hairs from his shoulder is annoying to your companion.

Grand for Tired Feet

Beauty

By RUTH MUGGLEBEE

IT IS more truth than poetry . . . that a woman's beauty literally totters on her feet . . . and, if beauty requisites were listed in order of their importance . . . the care of the feet would be well near the top.

It is almost an undisputed truism . . . that the woman who limps painfully along on tired and aching feet . . . inwardly wincing at their distress . . . can't help but reflect that discomfort in her face.

Show me a gal with a pinched-looking face . . . and I'll show you a gal whose feet are sore and agonizing and irritatingly weary . . . whose "tootsies" are simply killing her . . . and she's only walked from here to there.

Down through the ages . . . a woman's feet have been one of her greatest beauty assets . . . acclaimed by man as an admirable and attractive foundation for her body and facial beauty. More than they care to admit . . . men unconsciously stretch their glance to a gal's feet . . . if she's smartly rigged out . . . but woe unto the object of masculine attention if her pedal extremities don't meet up with his expectations of interest.

NEED EXTRA CARE NOW

The modern beauty-conscious woman has learned wisely . . . that feet can and should be beautiful . . . and she strives to pamper and cater to them with devoted and loving care. But so many . . . far too many, in fact . . . other females wait until the realization comes too late . . . that the feet should be attended to for the loveliness of their facial expression . . . and the perfect support for a well-turned body.

Because the modern gal is usually addicted to the wearing of high heels . . . they do something for the slimness of the figure . . . the feet haven't the ordinary opportunity for rest or relaxation since the weight of the body is on the toes. But a gal doesn't have to stop wearing high-heeled shoes . . . if she will only soothe the feet back to cooling and refreshing normalcy.

If a gal finds that her feet are in a tensive state after wearing stilt-like heels . . . she needs only to massage them vigorously with a delightful, new cooling lotion . . . created by one of the nation's foremost beauticians.

QUICK RELIEF

The lotion . . . which reminds me of a peach frappe . . . dries instantly on the feet after a thorough rubbing and gives almost instant relief. I like to think that I've stuck my feet into a bucket of ice cubes when I've treated my treaders with this luscious-looking medication . . . it is that cooling and fast-working.

Compounded from rich oils and blended with such softening ingredients as menthol and camphor . . . the soothing foot lotion is a much-welcomed answer to anyone's tired and aching feet. Sooth your walkers with this cooling treat and be happy in your next day's round-about excursions . . . A large, generous-sized bottle costs only $1.

For the name of this cooling foot lotion, phone the Beauty Dept., LIBerty 4000,—except the weekend, or write me, care of the Boston Evening American, inclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

FOR THE BEAUTY OF YOUR GLANCE . . . look to your feet, my dear . . . for they are the foundation not only of your body . . . but of your face. You can laugh and smile . . . with never a distressing moment . . . and walk for miles . . . if you treat your treaders with a new, cooling foot lotion to rest and relax them into comfortable beauty. Warner Star Betty Alexander has the kind of feet and legs gals dream about . . . for they are not tired and aching feet to reflect discomfort in her face.

Service Ribbons

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX—My son is in the Marine Corps, and my daughter has recently enlisted in the Women's Reserve of the Marine Corps. Will my daughter get the same service ribbons as her brother? MARINE'S MOTHER.

Yes; the Marine Corps Women's Reserve are eligible for the same service ribbons as their brother Marines. The WAVES and WACs also are awarded ribbons, but up to the present time the SPARS have no service ribbon.

Wear Stripes, Keep in Style

By BETTINA BEDWELL

TO WEAR stripes is to be in style this spring. A girl who likes to think of herself as up front in chic is likely to wear her stripes as part of the suit she wears.

Great designers have set this style for you. Norman Norell puts Roman-striped middy blouses with lining and jacket lapels to match on his suits. Omar Kiam puts candy-striped blouses with sober suits, and adds some of the striped material as trimming to the jacket.

One of his suits with stripes added is sketched by Miss Dulin. This model is navy blue wool, and the short, fitted jacket has V-shaped insets of clear red and white striped shantung set below the shoulders of the jacket. The blouse is also of red and white striped pure silk shantung, and looks like the sweater of a French sailor.

Ready for Onions

By MARTHA LEE

WHEN THINGS are plentiful we are apt to take them for granted. Many of us never realized how much an onion contributed to the savoriness of our daily cooking until we were faced with shortage this winter. Those who have gone without or who have been on short rations will welcome the news from the War Food Administration that a near-record crop will be coming to our markets very soon.

The first onions ready for harvest will be the Bermudas from Texas, both the yellow and the crystal white wax variety.

A delicious springtime salad bowl is a chilled mixture of grapefruit segments, slices or rings of Bermuda onions, and lettuce or cress or other salad greens served with French dressing. Save the juice that runs out in preparing the grapefruit to use in place of vinegar or lemon juice in the dressing.

A very handsome salad is a mold of tomato jelly or small frozen tomatoes, garnished with white rings of Bermuda onions and served on salad greens with mayonnaise.

FROZEN TOMATOES

6 small tomatoes
3 tbsp. butter or margarine
2 tsp. anchovy paste
Salad greens Mayonnaise

Scald and skin tomatoes. Remove a small piece from the blossom end and fill with butter or margarine which has been creamed with anchovy paste. Freeze in refrigerator trays for two hours. Serve on salad greens with mayonnaise. Garnish with onion rings. Makes six servings.

These big new onions are also ideal for baking whole, or stuffing and baking. The whole peeled onions can be put in the pan with a roast of lamb or a baked ham, and cooked for the same length of time.

STUFFED ONIONS I

6 large, mild onions
2 tbsp. butter or margarine, melted
1 cup soft bread crumbs
½ tsp. salt ⅛ tsp. pepper
1 tbsp. minced parsley
2 tsp. lemon juice
½ cup thin cream

Wash and peel onions and parboil 20 minutes. Drain, remove centers and chop. Combine melted butter, bread crumbs, seasonings, minced parsley and lemon juice with the chopped onion and mix well. Fill onions with stuffing. Arrange in greased baking dish, add cream, cover and bake in moderately hot oven (400 deg. F.) 15 minutes. Makes 6 servings.

Note—Chopped leftover meat may replace half the bread crumbs. The cream may be omitted and small pieces of bacon may be put on top of each onion, in which case, bake uncovered.

PALM BEACH, Fla., March 7—Buddy Baer has 25 pounds of weights pulling on his neck as the doctors at the Reams General Hospital, formerly the swanky Breakers Hotel, try to correct an old neck injury.

Buddy told me he had his neck injured in an auto accident before entering the Air Corps . . . The doctors decided weights applied to the proper spot might be more successful than an operation . . . Baer was cheerful and told me that Brother Max is located at an Air Corps camp near Indianapolis.

Buddy Baer

Al Caroly, who conducts the boxing shows at West Palm Beach, has a group of wounded veterans as his guests at each of his shows . . . The Air Corps band furnishes music on such occasions . . . Pointing to two Red Cross women who were assisting the veterans, Al remarked that their total wealth was $250,000,000 . . . One of the young ladies did a few dance steps in the aisle of the boxing club with one of the youngsters back from Europe with the scars of war . . . Caroly has had his best boxing season and asked to be remembered to Eddie Mack, Rip Valenti, Johnny Buckley and "Coogie" McFarland.

Decision Each Round

A REFEREE, without the aid of judges, decides the winners of the bouts . . . The referee gives a decision on each round, and his finding is flashed on an electric score board . . . The fans know how the bout is going, and when they don't like the decision of the referee on a particular round they do not hesitate to make known their feelings on the matter . . . I saw Fanny Ward cheering from a front row seat at a recent boxing show.

Johnny Brassill of Cambridge, who distinguished himself as one of the best boxing referees in the history of New England, is racing a kennel of 20 dogs at the track at West Palm Beach . . . Johnny has had exceptional good fortune with his dogs . . . One of them won recently to pay $27 . . . The attendance has doubled and the handle tripled at the West Palm Beach dog track over the figures of a year ago.

I visited the Biscayne track in Miami where the handle is running between $75,000 and $100,000 a night . . . I saw hundreds of service men at the races . . . Jack Donahue and Mrs. Donahue, who have many Boston friends, have a box at the finish line . . . Jack is one of the best handicappers of dogs in the country.

Golf Going Big

FROM WHAT I have seen in Florida, I would say golf will have a good year in New England . . . Now that one is able to go by auto to golf courses, the various links in Florida are well filled . . . Hundreds of service men gather around the tees at the Breakers course, adjoining the Reams General Hospital, to watch the game . . . When this writer suggested to some of the service men that they try a few drives themselves, they readily consented to do so . . . Their buddies got a kick out of their shots . . . Army doctors have found that an interest in sports is a good thing for our returning service men.

I met Phil Buccola, Bobby Goldman, Charley Warmuth, Louis Halloran and Mrs. Halloran of Jamaica Plain, Joe Hines, Horace Wade and numerous other Boston people at the races.

Charles Connors, chairman of the board at Narragansett Park, and Mrs. Connors remained for the Hialeah Park meeting and the Tropical Park opening . . . Hialeah Park had one of its most successful meetings, while Tropical Park should also set up a few new records.

Dave Wilson told me that many of the better two-year-olds were sick during the Hialeah Park meeting, but that they should round to form during the racing at Tropical Park . . . Ernie Sparrell of Norwell, who with Russ Murray first gave Massachusetts half-mile racing at the Marshfield Fair, has been spending the winter at Dunedin on the West Coast . . . He will return home in April.

Random Shots at Target

NEIL MILLANE and Dan Millane of Middletown, Ct., have been here for several weeks . . . Neil has been playing golf daily at the Breakers course . . . I saw Joe O'Connell and Eddie Gallagher of Boston, teeing off at the Breakers course.

The night spots, as well as the hotels, are doing a record business . . . It is not expected that the hotel situation will ease up until April . . . The extra trains, permitted by the ODT, are getting 300 "refugees" out of Florida each day . . . The coaches that are being used are much like the broken down equipment that was used for the race specials that used to run to the New England race tracks.

Meal Ticket Lost

PHILADELPHIA, March 7 (AP)—Bob Montgomery says he'll be "losing a meal ticket" when Beau Jack Joins the Army.

The bobcat, who won the New York Boxing Commission's version of the lightweight title from the Beau last week, pointed out that he had earned about $75,000 in the last three Montgomery-Jack scraps.

Bruins in Top Form For Wings Clash Here

By BILL GRIMES

With a Toronto-Ranger home and home series coming up, unless they turn back the Detroit Red Wings tonight at the Boston Garden, the Bruins chances of getting into the Stanley Cup series are very remote.

For the first time in more than three weeks, the Rossmen will be at war strength. After being sidelined for 14 out of 15 games, Bill Cowley, the ace playmaker of the NHL, returned to the front line a week ago tonight. But, before the Cowboy came back, Jack Crawford was hospitalized again and has been out of the last three games.

Crawford will return to his defense post against the Red Wings. And, now that he has three games under his belt, Cowley is back in mid-season form.

WINGS COASTING

Cowley will center for Bep Guidolin and Norm Calladine. Against Toronto and Rangers, the Cowley-Guidolin-Calladine line annexed a total of 14 points, which topped the Art Jackson-Cain-Boll trio by three points.

The Red Wings are coasting along in second place by a margin of two games over the Blackhawks. The world's champions have been pushovers for Les Canadiens this season, losing eight and tieing one in nine games. And, on the other hand, the Red Wings have chalked up seven of their last nine wins over the Bruins and Rangers.

Naturally, Manager Jack Adams is bitterly disappointed over the manner in which the Canucks have tossed his world's champions around. Smiling Jack doesn't care whether he meets the Maple Leafs or the Blackhawks in the first round of he coming playoffs.

"They look good when they're winning," declared Adams today, "so Les Canadiens should look the best to me, for I've seen them win eight games and, off the record, they'd have taken nine straight from us but for a third-period goal by Flash Hollett, who gave up the lone point we took from them this year.

HAWKS ARE FLYING

"But, if the Blackhawks finish third, and I were a betting man, I'd wager the Chicago club would take the Habitants. Mike Karakas made the Hawks a serious contender for the Stanley Cup.

"The Hawks have a great line in Bentley, Smith and Mosienko, one of the best. And, right now, they are flying.

Of course, the Frenchmen will have an edge by opening the series at home. They've been unbeatable in the Forum, where they've won 21 and tied one in 22 games. But the Hawks can get rough. And they can take it. If they are eliminated it will not be until they have softened up Canadiens for Detroit."

BRAVES PAIR ASK CHANCE TO COME BACK

In the event that the applications for re-instatement received yesterday from Chet Clemens and Mike Sandlock are acted upon favorably, the third base and center field problems, which have caused Pres. Bob Quinn many sleepless nights this winter, may be solved.

Manager Bob Coleman telephoned yesterday that Clemens and Sandlock, who asked to be put on the voluntary retired list a year ago, had contacted him and declared that they wanted to get back in baseball.

Along with Chet Ross, Clemens was brought up from Evansville after the close of the 1939 Three Eye League season. In the fall tryout, Clemens made a better impression than Ross, and he's one month younger than the Braves potential slugger.

LACKS ROSS' POWER

Clemens lacks Ross' power but that's all. He is a real speed merchant. He's a Californian and quit baseball to enter the employ of the Lockheed Aircraft Corp., where for years he worked during the off season. He is a 4-effer.

Clemens was to have gone south with the 1940 Bees. But he became ill during the off season and elected to remain on the Coast. That was the year that Chet Ross came up and was a sensation as a rookie.

There isn't any question in Coleman's mind but that Clemens can play center field better than any Brave has done in years. In the Three Eye League, Clemens was consistently over or just under the .300 mark. He's not a slugger but due to his fleetness of foot, can stretch singles into doubles and two-baggers into triples. He throws and bats right-handed.

FORMER CATCHER

Mike Sandlock was with the Bees at Bradenton in 1940. In those days Mike was a catcher and a pretty good one. He was a hustler, a la Phil Masi, and a good looking hitter, especially batting left-handed. After he had caught a year for Evansville, Coleman converted Sandlock into a shortstop. Coleman believed that Mike's speed afoot and his great arm was being wasted back of the plate. Mike didn't have much trouble transforming from a receiver to a shortstop. He also played some at third base.

With "Whitey" Weitelmann available, the Braves have a shortstop but they have been fresh out of third sackers for years. So, Mike Sandlock, who would have been the third sacker last season, if he had reported, will get a shot at playing the hot corner.

The news that Clemens and Sandlock would report to the Braves next week at the Choate School was the best that Quinn and Coleman have received since the club passed into the ownership of Louis Perini, Joe Maney and Guido Rugo.

Other than that Tom McBride sent in his signed contract, there's little or no news at Fenway Park, at present. But there will be in the near future. GRIMES

Ray Meyer Honored

CHICAGO, March 7 (INS)—Ray Meyer, coach of DePaul's basketball team, drew the vote of members of the Chicago Basketball Writers' Ass'n as "coach of the year."

Owens 30, Still Sure He Can Beat 10s.

DETROIT, March 7 (AP)—The place where he gained his greatest triumphs is being blasted off the map, but coffee-colored Jesse Owens at 30 still can run 100 yards under ten seconds. "At least I think I can," grinned Jesse across a desk at the Ford Motor Company where he is employed as a public relations man. "Last summer I ran in a war relief meet in Canada and they clocked me in :09.8. I think I could do that well right now."

One look at Jesse is enough to make this wholly credible. He weighs 175, only half a dozen pounds more than in his cinder-pounding days at Ohio State University and his triple triumph in the 1936 Olympic games at Berlin.

"I guess that Olympic stadium must be a heap of rubble by now," he said solemnly, "and I hope it is. But my biggest track thrill was winning the 100 meters there. Eddie Tolan, who won the 100 at Los Angeles in 1932, says his Olympic victory also was his biggest thrill. He's working in Detroit, too, you know."

Owens still holds many of the records he established but he predicts that probably all will be replaced in his lifetime.

"Track records are made to be broken," he asserted. "Someone is going to come along one of these days and push the 100-yard record nearer 9 seconds flat. Whether they'll ever shave four-tenths of a second off the present mark of :09.4 is hard to say. That would be pretty fast."

While he's still wrapped up in the sport, Owens says his track days are definitely finished. He's settled down here with his wife and three daughters after several years of barnstorming in which his earnings were relatively small. For exercise he has taken up golf and bowling.

Owens was suspended by the Amateur Athletic Union after the Olympics for catching the first boat home, thus missing an exhibition tour. The ban never was lifted.

By HUCK FINNEGAN

PHIL TERRANOVA, who risks his NBA featherweight title against Sal Bartolo at the Garden Friday, has three noteworthy accomplishments to his credit in his 24 years on this planet. He (1) overcame a serious physical defect to reach his current high fistic station; (2) became world champion in his second year as pro, and (3) knocked out Jackie Callura three times running.

The guitar-playing New Yorker had boxed two brisk rounds with Snooks Lacey, two with Sammy Garcia, had provoked from spectator Jack Sharkey the comment "a busy little fellow." Cooling off in the dressing room before his shower he doffed a bath slipper and said: "There it is."

Phil Terranova

By "there" he meant half a heel on his left foot, with more stitches than a baseball. Nasty looking.

It had happened when he was 11 years of age. Swung off the rear end of a trolley car into the path of an automobile. Brakes screeched. Women, too. "I'll rush him to the hospital," said the driver. So helping hands lifted him into the car. But instead of rushing him to the hospital the driver dumped him in a vacant lot. "Wait here until I get some bandages," he said. Phil waited and waited, bled and bled.

"The pain was so intense I started to yell," he said, grimacing at the thought. "I tried to drag myself out of the lot, but it was no use. Thought I'd bleed to death and might have if an old man hadn't happened along and helped me to a drugstore. There they phoned for an ambulance, and eventually I got to the hospital, which was only four blocks from the scene of the accident."

Brother Boxed

SO PHIL lay in the hospital four months while doctors whittled and embroidered his heel. Any athletic dreams he might have had vanished "but at least I had my leg," he philosophized.

The years passed. Phil's brother Frank boxed. He was good, too, good enough to fight Mike Belloise when the latter was champion. And the kids around the neighborhood kept coming back from amateur shows with medals. Phil was picking up dishes in a one-armed joint at the time. No glory, no romance. "I'm going to get me a medal," he vowed.

He entered the sub-novice class in the Golden Gloves 126's and wound up open champion. Just as simple as that. Sixteen more amateur appearances, 15 victories. "Pick up your own dishes," Phil told his employer.

He turned pro on Jan. 20, 1942, when the featherweight division was in a turmoil. It all started when Joey Archibald was kayoed by Pete Scalzo in an overweight match, then wouldn't give Scalzo a title shot. The NBA declared the throne vacant, matched Scalzo with Frankie Cavelli. Scalzo won. Richie Lemos took the title from Scalzo, Jackie Wilson from Lemos, Jackie Callura from Wilson.

Meanwhile Terranova was blasting his way up the ladder and earned a Callura bout by whipping Lulu Constantino who had compiled a 37-fight win streak. The first was in overweight match in Hartford, the second and third championship fights in New Orleans. All resulted in kayo victories for Terranova, who took the title Aug. 16, 1943, just 17 months after his first pro fight. Did Fidel La Barba reach the top any quicker?

There are critics who insist that Callura's style is made to order for an aggressive little chap like Terranova; that a counter-puncher like Bartolo is sure to strip him of the title.

Seeks Pep Bout

BOBBY GLEASON, who manages Terranova, doesn't agree. In fact he's looking beyond the bout to a well-earned vacation at Hot Springs.

"By that time Willie Pep may be back in action," he says. "Then we'll whip him, and the division will have only one champion again."

He oozed confidence as he talked. Was his battler that good?

"I have a system," he says. "Every time Phil enters the ring I tell him: Make believe your opponent is the driver of that hit-run car.' It hasn't failed yet."

THEY'LL DO IT EVERY TIME

FINISHED? INDEED, YOU'RE NOT! YOU DIDN'T DO THE BACK WALK AND THE DRIVEWAY YET! YOU DON'T THINK I'D PAY A QUARTER JUST TO HAVE THE FRONT AND SIDE SHOVELED, DO YOU? WHAT DO YOU KIDS EXPECT, GRAVY?
HOW DYA LIKE THAT? HELL HAVE THE KID CLEANING THE ATTIC AND PAINTING THE CELLAR BEFORE HE'LL PAY HIM—I'D BE WILLING TO PAY THE KID DOUBLE TO SHOVEL THE SNOW BACK ON HIS WALK—
I KNEW IT! HE NEVER PAID A BILL WITHOUT SQUAWKIN', YET! HE STILL OWES MY WILLIE FOR CUTTING LAST YEAR'S GRASS
I'LL SERVE HIM RIGHT IF HE GETS PNEUMONIA STANDING OUT THERE, ARGUING WITH THE KID—
LAST CHRISTMAS, HE GAVE ME A STAMP—HE'LL PROBABLY PAY THE KID OFF IN SNOWBALLS
A BUSINESS EDUCATION THE HARD WAY—TRYING TO COLLECT FROM THE LOCAL SKINFLINT—YEAH, JUST TRY—

FRAMINGHAM FAVORED IN TECH TOURNEY

By MIKE GILLOOLY

Jack Daniels, coach of Framingham High School for the past 19 years, won't like it a bit but he'll be our favorite to drive his quintet to Class B honors in the annual Tech Basketball Tourney which will open on the $10,000 boards at the Boston Garden tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock.

Framingham, facing an undefeated Provincetown five in the opening game, will share the distinction with its rival of being the first team to open the doors for the comeback of the court game in the Hub.

BACKBOARDS TRICKY

Tournament play will be no novelty to the Framingham guiding genius. He has had teams entered in the Tech carnivals in seasons past and as late as 1940, Coach Daniels had a team in the running. A member of the defunct Bay State League this season, Framingham chalked up a dozen victories against what might have been the circuit cast.

Framingham, like all the other entries in the play, will have the jitters in opening the tourney. The kids can't help it while stepping from local gymnasiums with seating capacities of 500 to the spacious Garden, virtually without ceiling. Then, too, the transparent backboards will prove tricky but no more so against Framingham than any of the others.

Coach Daniels has a grand starting line-up which will be relied on to carry the greater part of the burden through to the finals. Capt. Elidio Introini and Louis Del Polo will be at the forwards, Howard Simpson at center and Bob Quinn and Harold Drugan at the guards. Spares will be Dick Kola, Albert Rubin, Don St. Andre, Bill Flynn, Nello Conti, Don Chasse, and Capt.-elect Bernard Kane.

CLASS A AT 6:30

Other pairings in Class B will carry along throughout the afternoon until Class A takes over at 6:30 will pit Belmont against Newburyport, 1941 champion; Braintree against Story and defending titlist Lexington against Methuen.

Class A will find Somerville meeting North Quincy in the opener tomorrow night followed by Attleboro vs. Medford; Waltham vs. Brockton and New Bedford vs. Haverhill.

PITTSBURGH, March 7 (AP)—Outfielder Johnny Barrett has been classified 4-F by his Lawrence, Mass., draft board, the Pirates management said today.

President Benswanger announced receipt of a letter from Barrett saying he will report here to leave with the squad March 14 for the Bucs' training camp in Muncie, Ind.

ACNE INFECTION

Should be treated at once, because it causes oil, clogged pores, and blemishes which result in SCARS. Do not be afflicted; come in for treatment if possible, or send for Form B, to fill in and return with $3.00 for correct Diet. Do not be embarrassed by moles or discolorations; they can be removed so easily and Mole expenses no more.
